Tributes from Elizabeth's School Friends

Zoe

"She was a special generous courageous funny strong woman and true friend. "

Laura

"She had a great sense of humour (I remember how she always used to call me (and I'm sure many others) "Mrs" in a Franky Howard sort of way!) She loved people - that was clear from the path she ultimately chose in the police force i.e. community policing. I remember when, some time after she had left the police force, she would call with Christmas cards for us, then she would go onto deliver cards to old ladies who she was still in touch with from her community policing days! She also "lived" her life - she did all the things she said she wanted to do - have children, train in counselling, get a degree and open her own business. She also seemed incredibly stoic when she knew she was critically ill - and she just "kept trucking on". She was a brave person and a great friend."

Clare

"My thoughts about Elizabeth are that she had a great sense of humour which she kept throughout her illness. Elizabeth was so caring, I remember when I lived in Germany she always brought Christmas gifts to my parents' house for my children. Whenever I arranged a get together Elizabeth always made sure she could come. Elizabeth was determined in life in the last few years she gained her degree & opened her own shop something I know she had wanted to do for some time. Elizabeth loved her family & friends, she was a true friend always there over the years."
